

Rick Hulbert 2 day workshops in Victoria, BC

Here's a short description of what to expect:

Victoria is an amazing locale with it's unique architectural settings and beautiful harbour.

Urban environments comprise the most diverse, target-rich places to photograph . . . anywhere. Most photos contain a "subject" within a setting or background. The cool reality is that Buildings and Urban Places can be both subjects and/or settings. Think about all the images you have made or will make in the future that contain buildings as the featured subject or as backgrounds to a myriad of other photo subjects . . . like people and their activities.

For capturing the overall impact of Victoria Harbour, a wide angle lens would be appropriate. To best capture a "slice of life," a lens focal length from moderate wide angle to slightly telephoto would be appropriate.

You will have opportunities to photograph anything and everything that is part of the 'urban landscape'...including, but not limited to buildings and bridges along with people and plants.

This workshop is designed to improve your photography regardless of whether you consider picture taking a hobby, or you are a serious enthusiast, or you are a professional photographer.
